Dear Kleenix:

I have a question about your kleenixes. I found my brother's writing and composition book and it showed me an example of how to write a consumer letter and how to put the date and address. Am I doing good? I even created this letterhead myself on my dad's macintosh computer. I like pcs better because that is what they have at my school and they have better games but dad insists on using macs. He also only allows me to play on his computer for 6 hours a week. He has some sort of program that tracks my time and gives him a report every week. He doesn't know that I know his password to login on his name when he isn't home but I think my brother knows and I am afraid that he might tell on me. I hate my brother. His name is Neil and he is 14.

I was talking to Neil last week when I had to sneeze. I blew my nose into a kleenx and Neil made a gross out face at me. He asked me why I would wipe my face with someone else's face. When I asked him what he meant he told me that kleenex was really just facial tissue and then he pulled out his biology book and showed me that tissue is really what makes up human skin. He showed me what face tissue looks like up close under a microscope. Dad is too cheap to buy us a microscope but I saw the picture in Neil's biology book.

I once saw Neil rubbing his face on someone else's face. He thinks that Karen is really pretty, but I think her face looks like a pepperoni pizza. Neil only thinks she is pretty because that is the only girl he could ever get interested in. I think it is more gross to rub your face with a pizza than with kleenex. But I read what the biology book said and it is true. Neil wasn't lying to me. It was even typewritten in the book and not something Neil wrote in himself with a black pen. (For a long time he had me believing that we lived in the USSR and that Cannanda was actually China and that Mexico was Mongola but I was only 8 years old then and Neil made the writing in his geography book look almost real).

So can you tell me why you make kleenxs out of other people's skin and whether that is really a safe thing for me to blow my nose in. It says right on the box that it is facial tissue! I am worried about where you get that from. I watched that movie called Texas chainsaw massacre 2 and I remember that leatherface had other peoples skins on his own face like a mask and it made me have nightmares for about five months. But I didnt wet the bed. Now I am afraid to use kleenexes when I have to sneeze because I do not want to be like leatherface.

Sincerely,

p.s. My school has a dress down day every month when we are allowed to ware jeans and baseball caps. You are only allowed to dress down if you have been behaveing. I sometimes get into trouble in school. Once Christmas break rolls around I usually am no longer able to dress down for the rest of the year (they don't even give us a start over in January even when report cards come out). So next year I will only be able to dress down in October and November of next year (they dont even let us do it in September cause they say everyone should still have a good record that early in the year and I think that isnt fair). Seymour is the only kid in my class who is still allowed to dress down in June. He is a teachers pet and I beat him up last year and took his milk money.

I would like to have a really cool new basball cap to wear for next year since I will only have one or two chances to ware it. Do you have any Kleenix caps or any other company logo caps? If you do could you send me one? I have a rather large head for my age but an adjustable cap should fit me good.
